Description

After inspection of the air conditioning system in unit 10, it was found that it is part of a large water cooled system which is supplying all of the office areas & suites.

The system that is in the office is water cooled from the part on the roof.

It supplies chilled water which passes through the unit in each suite.

It blows chilled air out of the top of the unit via a duct to each area.

If this is not covered by body corporate, then I would suggest to put a conventual ducted system in with a new condenser unit on the roof and a fan coil unit inside the false ceiling.

Adapt existing solid duct in ceiling to new fan coil.

Would recommend 3 phase 20kw system using Mitsubishi Heavy Industries.

NOTE - While cutting back the solid metal duct to make the adaptors to fit I noticed that the existing flexible round duct coming off the main metal duct to each of the outlets was in extremely poor condition.

They would need replacing in the future.

I did replace 1 of the duct to the outlet in the room we were working in.
