Additional Information

If you decide to give a binding or non-binding direction by completing this Nomination, it is important for you to note the following:

1. You can only direct the Trustee to pay the benefit either to your Legal Personal Representative, (that is, to the executor of your will or the administrator granted letters of administration of your estate if you do not leave a will) or to the dependants that you specify in this Nomination.
2. If, on this Nomination, you direct the Trustee to pay any part of your death benefit to a person who is not a dependant (as described below), or your estate, your direction will be void and of no effect and the Trustee will be required to decide to whom to pay your death benefit.
3. For the purposes of the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993 (Cth), a dependant is:
  - a spouse of a Member
  - any children of a Member
  - any other person (whether related to the Member or not) with whom the Member has an interdependency relationship.

"Spouse" of a person includes:

- (a) another person (whether of the same sex or a different sex) with whom the person is in a relationship that is registered under a law of a State or Territory prescribed for the purposes of section 2E of the Acts Interpretation Act 1901 as a kind of relationship prescribed for the purposes of that section; and
- (b) another person who, although not legally married to the person, lives with the person on a genuine domestic basis in a relationship as a couple.

Two persons (whether or not related by family) have an "interdependency relationship" if:

- (a) they have a close personal relationship;
- (b) they live together;
- (c) one or each of them provides the other with financial support; and
- (d) one or each of them provides the other with domestic support and personal care.

If two persons (whether or not related) have a close relationship, but do not satisfy these requirements because either or both of them suffer from a physical, intellectual or psychiatric disability, they are considered to have an interdependency relationship.

The following matters are to be taken into account when determining whether two people have an interdependency relationship, or had an interdependency relationship immediately before death:

- (a) all of the circumstances of the relationship between the persons, including (where relevant):
  - (i) the duration of the relationship
  - (ii) whether or not a sexual relationship exists
  - (iii) the ownership, use and acquisition of property
  - (iv) the degree of mutual commitment to a shared life
  - (v) the care and support of children
  - (vi) the reputation and public aspects of the relationship
  - (vii) the degree of emotional support
  - (viii) the extent to which the relationship is one of mere convenience, and
  - (ix) any evidence suggesting that the parties intend the relationship to be permanent
- (b) the existence of a statutory declaration signed by one of the persons to the effect that the person is, or (in the case of a statutory declaration made after the end of the relationship) was, in an interdependency relationship with the other person.

Each one of the above need not be met and the extent to which any one matter exists or does not exist does not necessarily of itself confirm or exclude an interdependency relationship.

If you have any doubt as to whether a person you wish to nominate to receive any part of your death benefit is a dependant, you should seek professional advice before completing a Nomination.

4. A nomination requiring a benefit to be paid to your spouse will be revoked if proceedings have commenced under the Family Law Act 1975 (Cth) or similar laws seeking a dissolution of a relationship (including, but not limited to a marriage) between you and your spouse, or if proceedings have been instituted for Orders concerning property following separation from your spouse.
