Engagement as ASIC Agent / contact with Australian Securities Investments Commission.
The compliance and key responsibilities in this respect are as listed below.

An annual fee is associated with this attendance, currently $198.00 (inclusive of GST).

- Acting as registered office for the company. (We are required to maintain register of all companies in our reception for public display – ASIC requirement). – ASIC requires an office to be manned during all business hours so that notices can be served in person. PO BOX or the like are not acceptable. If notice cannot be served for whatever reason then the company incurs a penalty which is calculated based on company size and delay in serving notice.
- Ensuring renewals are executed by the due date to prevent late lodgement penalties – We are linked to ASIC as Registered ASIC Agent to access their system.
- Reviewing annually the company operations and preparing a statement that the company is able to meet its debts as and when due, as you know, director's are personally liable if the company is trading insolvent.

(This review needs to be documented and retained on file as evidence). This is especially important with trustees acting for SMSF's.

- Updating the Company Files and related minutes to ensure officeholders, share capital and any other changes including leases executed etc., and have same properly minuted.
- Lodgement of all changes with ASIC be it business address, officeholders, share capital and the like within the allowed timeframes to prevent late lodgement penalties accruing on the account.
- Correspondence and discussion with officeholders with respect of advice around liabilities of directors and ASIC compliance as far as the company is concerned as and when required throughout the year.
