Hi Bill.

Good to talk to you today.

In principle I accept your proposed plan with some small variations included in the following:

Out of my debenture you will pay:

$5,000 per month starting on 28th February (I forgot my medications) to be reviewed at end of June.$38,200 to my sister by 7th March - she will send you an email as requested with her bank details before that date.$5,000 to my daughter for her dog (she is severely depressed and this was my promised christmas gift to her)I will send you her (or David's) bank details for the deposit in late April or early May when she can get it from the breeder.$54,000 on invoice from Sydney City Toyota for Rav4 AWD hybrid Cruiser around end April/early May when it arrives

(please budget this but i will consider finance and let you know closer to the time.)

yes it includes on-road costs but the price is not yet precisely known. Insurance may need to be added.

Any amount to cover medical procedures that would otherwise leave me out of pocket (I expect none and am mostly covered by Medicare and Bupa)

It is expected that the balance of the debenture will be paid by the end of June (unless agreed otherwise) and that interest will be earned on the balance at all times.

If you're ok with this Bill I would appreciate your acknowledgment in an email with a copy to Brooke at Foxton Financial.

I don't think there are any contingencies not allowed for but I'm sure reason will apply on both sides.

I hope this helps you with your shortfall.

Yours faithfully

Gordon Undy

PS: by copy I advise Brooke of this arrangement and request that any comments she may have be incorporated.
