Coinspace fraud or legal operation?

🕒 November 13, 2019 👤 wedgeframe

Following the diffusion of crypto currencies and the continuous introduction of new types of coins. The cases of fraud have increased too. Many people have invested into what they believed were real and genuine crypto currencies, and then end up disappointed. The Coinspace case seems to be the one of these.

Coinspace is a company that presents itself as a cloud mining method, according to the company's own definition, makes available 20.000 hardware processors and a dedicated server for the investment into crypto currencies.

Every package sold by Coinspace allows to gain S-Coin points based upon this outline:

- Minimum Mine – 30 S-Coins
- Basic Mine – 100 S-Coins
- Quarter Mine – 250 S-Coins
- Half Mine – 500 S-Coins
- Full Mine – 1000 S-Coins
- Double Mine – 2000 S-Coins

The Coinspace method, how does it work?

Initially advertised as the most interesting crypto currencies company where to invest. It didn't take too much time to create a long list of unsatisfied customers that have accused the company of fraud.

Its business model is based upon two elements:

- Crypto currency mining
- Introduction of other customers to the platform

The mining service in fact has not fully started therefore the only way to begin the operations in the system is to introduce other people that will pay an entry sum. An element that easily qualifies it like a pyramidal system.

The only possible way to profit with Coinspace is based on a Ponzi scheme: the entry sums paid by the new investors are used to pay the profits of those that have previously joined.

A system that is illegal for CONSOB

On February 2017 the advertising activity for Coinspace crypto currencies packages extraction was blocked by CONSOB for 90 days, as a precautionary measure. At that time, the company was selling its services through the website www.coinspace1.com. Coinspace was never registered at the CONSOB, not having gained any authorization from CySEC nor it is acting based upon the Midfield convention in Europe: these are all the details that should have soon alerted those that were considering investing through such system.

MFSA says that Coinspace Ltd which offers financial services is not licensed

Posted On December 20, 2016 - Updated 20 December, 2016 4:20pm

The Malta Financial Services Authority, MFSA, notified the public that Coinspace Ltd, a company registered in Malta which operates through the site <http://coinspace.eu> (<http://coinspace.eu>) is not licensed.

MFSA said in a statement that the company registered on address Mariah Building, Industrial Estate, Triq il-Kappar, Mosta is offering a selection of services linked to cryptocurrencies, including exchange and cloud mining services, and seems to offer the opportunity of investment in the property of these cryptocurrencies. However, MFSA added, this company is neither licensed nor authorized to provide any investment services or other financial services, from or in Malta. It stated that the public should be aware also that investment opportunities, on which promotion is made by Coinspace Ltd, most probably are of a dubious nature with a great chance of loss of money.

MFSA therefore appealed to financial services investors and consumers that before they carry out any investment, they ascertain themselves that the entity is authorized by MFSA or any other regulator to provide such services.

Are you looking for a cryptocurrency broker? If, yes, then the first thing you need to ensure is that you go for a legitimate and regulated broker. Now, the problem is that is there is a wide range of crypto trading brokers available in the market. However, you need to use your discretion before making your pick.

We will just explore one of the brokers here that are known as Coinspace.

(<https://scamrecovery.net/contact-form-free-consultation/>)

- The initial impression of the Coinspace site (<https://scamrecovery.net/online-trading-scams/coinspace-review/#coinspace-crypto-trading-broker>)
- The regulation issue (<https://scamrecovery.net/online-trading-scams/coinspace-review/#coinspace-broker-regulation>)
- The missing demo option (<https://scamrecovery.net/online-trading-scams/coinspace-review/#coinspace-trading-platform>)
- The policy concerns (<https://scamrecovery.net/online-trading-scams/coinspace-review/#coinspace-trading-policy>)
- Is Coinspace.eu Legit or a Scam? (<https://scamrecovery.net/online-trading-scams/coinspace-review/#is-coinspace-broker-real-or-fake>)

The initial impression of the Coinspace site

When you are about to select a crypto trading broker, then the first thing you do is visit the site. Most traders are keen to get information about the people who operate the broker. The reason is that when you know the team that you develop a comfort zone regarding your choice.

Well, when you visit the Coinspace site, you will find the about us page, but it does not have any information about the people who operate the site, so that makes you sceptical.

The regulation issue

Another problem with Coinspace is that it is not regulated. Initially, it was assumed that Coinspace got its regulation from MFSA, but that is not the case for sure. We suggest that you should have a good look at the image below where MFSA announces that Coinspace is not registered with it.

Source: MFSA (<https://www.mfsa.com.mt/pages/announcement.aspx?id=8086>)

The missing demo option

Now, when you click the Join Now Button on the site, then a new page opens up. Well, if you think things will get smooth here, then you are in for a surprise. The minute you click on the landing page you will realize that the site is not secure so this is something to worry about. There are two options that you see on the screen here.

One is Japan, and one is International. When you click on the International option, you get diverted to a sign-up. There is no option here that allows you to open a demo account with the platform.

When the demo account is available, then you can try the platform with ease and convenience, but that does not happen here.

The policy concerns

You will also notice the fact that the policies are unclear. When you go through the Coinspace policies and procedures, you will know that this platform readily allows the members to purchase Coinspace products from other Affiliate members.

The below-mentioned text is acquired directly from the Coinspace site

"There is no requirement to enroll in the Compensation Plan or commit to a minimum order to purchase COINSPACE products. Customers may purchase COINSPACE products directly from Independent Member Affiliates, by placing an order through an Affiliate's replicated website."

It is never a smart move in any situation to encourage the practice mentioned above. If you start to deal with the affiliates, there are chances that you will have to deal with frauds. The platform needs to take ownership of the members.

Apart from this, there are some other things to get concerned about. Coinspace does not have the email address on its site. Every platform has an official email address, and this is important information that is missing.

Is Coinspace.eu Legit or a Scam?

The discussion mentioned above shows one thing clearly, and that is there are many doubts and shady areas related to Coinspace. We suggest that you avoid this broker in the first place and think along the lines of opting for regulated options.
