RETIREMENT PROJECTION

Here's your estimated annual income if you retire at age 67

Super balance at 30 June 2020	$28,625.08
Estimated super balance at age 67	$292,000.00
Estimated annual income if you retire at age 67	$27,900 pa.

This is made up of $16,500.00 in annual income from your super and $11,400.00 from the Age Pension.

The Age Pension amount makes a number of assumptions about your personal situation at age 67, including that you have a partner and that you and your partner have no other assets, including other super. Whether you're entitled to the Age Pension at retirement will depend on your personal circumstances. Go to the next page for a full list of all the assumptions used in the calculation of your projection.

The amount you can transfer from your super to an account-based pension is capped at $1.6 million. If you receive more than $1.6 million from your super, you're likely to have to pay tax on the excess amount. For more information about this, Mine Super Financial Advice can help. Please call us on 13 64 63 and we'll put you in touch with a financial adviser.

Are you on track for a comfortable retirement?

It's important to think about the lifestyle you want in retirement and whether you're on track to achieve it.

Find out below the type of lifestyle your estimated annual income might support[^].

	For a modest lifestyle at around age 65 you'll need	For a comfortable lifestyle at around age 65 you'll need
If you're single	$28,220 pa	$44,183 pa
If you're a couple	$40,719 pa	$62,435 pa

What's a modest and comfortable retirement lifestyle?

- A modest retirement lifestyle is one where you'll only be able to afford fairly basic things.
- A comfortable retirement lifestyle is one where you'll be able to be involved in a broad range of leisure and recreational activities, buy things like a reasonable car, electronic equipment, and go on domestic holidays and occasionally overseas.

What this estimate means

The projection is just an estimate, not a guarantee. The actual money you get in your retirement may be very different from this estimate.

The superannuation amounts are shown in today's dollars. The age pension estimate is shown based on current pension amounts.

This estimate does not consider any other superannuation accounts that you may hold or other assets that you own.

How the estimate is worked out

This estimate has been worked out using these assumptions and figures:

- $28,625.08 in your super fund now
- your wages will increase at the same rate as inflation
- investment earnings of 3% per year after inflation and investment fees
- annual administration fees and costs of $104.00 plus 0.16% of your account balance (note that this amount may change over time)
- your rate of super contributions during the previous year will continue unchanged until retirement
- your age at 30 June 2020
- you retire at age 67
- you want your super to last for 25 years - that is, until age 92. Around one in six men and one in four women who reach age 67 will live beyond age 92
- annual insurance premiums of $2,947.92 (note that this amount may change over time), and
- current tax and superannuation laws remain unchanged.

These are standard assumptions and have been set with input from the Australian Government Actuary. They may not match your actual circumstances either now or in the future. Also, the figures used may differ from those shown in your member statement. The annual income shown does not include any deductions for any income tax you may have to pay.

If you want to know more about the way this estimate has been worked out, or the assumptions, contact 13 64 63 or visit mine.com.au

What you will actually get when you retire

The actual amount of money you get in retirement may vary considerably from the estimate.

Factors that influence what you will get include:

- the investment options you choose (e.g. conservative, balanced, growth)
- the performance of your investment
- the total fees charged in relation to your account
- when you retire and get access to your super
- the super contributions you and your employer make
- whether you choose to buy an account-based pension or non-account-based income stream when you retire
- any allowance you make for a pension for your spouse or partner, and
- whether you receive any age pension or other government benefit.

This estimate has been calculated assuming all current rules concerning super and taxing super remain in place.

This estimate only applies to your super account with this fund.

This amount represents the amount payable to you and does not include any estimate of the age pension payable to your partner. It assumes that at retirement your partner has the same amount of super as you, that you and your partner jointly own your own home, and that you and your partner have no other assets or income, including other superannuation accounts.

You may not be eligible for some or all of this age pension amount if you (or your partner) have income or assets in addition to these superannuation amounts or your home.

Age pension rates and eligibility rules may change between now and when you retire. The age pension amount shown at retirement age may also change during retirement as your personal circumstances change.

The Department of Human Services rate estimator lets you estimate your payment rate of age pension, based on your current or proposed circumstances. It does not work out if you will be eligible for a payment. To use the rate estimator, go to www.humanservices.gov.au/estimators

- These returns are not necessarily the same return you earned on your account. Reasons for this include the date you started your account and the timing of contributions, benefit payments, deductions and investment switches.
- These returns are after tax and other management costs but before the administration fee and other direct fees.
- This information is general in nature and shouldn't be considered advice. Past investment performance isn't necessarily an indicator of future performance.

¹The figure quoted as the 10 year return is the eight year return, which is the period for which the Term Deposit investment option has been in operation. There's no 10 year return for this investment option because it started in 2012. The returns are average returns for the period and aren't the actual interest rate of individual term deposits.

Smoking or non-smoking	Non-smoker

Information about your job classification

Mining job classification

You perform light or heavy manual work in an underground mine for more than 5% of your total work time or work in any other high risk occupation agreed between the insurer and Mine Super.

It's important your job classification reflects the type of job you have as it affects how much your insurance costs. To update your job classification go to mine.com.au/change-insurance

Your insurance information reflects what our records show for you at 30 June 2020. The benefits we've recorded for you aren't guaranteed and are subject to you being eligible for this insurance and our records being correct. If you make a claim, there are conditions you'll need to meet before we'll pay your insurance cover. For more information about your insurance read the How to read your super statement flyer and Insurance Guide.

We've signed up to the Insurance in Superannuation Voluntary Code of Practice. You can find the Code and additional information about your rights at mine.com.au/insurancecode

If you have insurance, here's some important information.

Insurance is a valuable benefit that you can pay for through your super. Each year, your premium changes as you get older. It can also change if there's been an increase or decrease in the amount or type of your insurance cover or if things like your smoking status, job classification, waiting periods or benefit periods change. If you have any questions about your cover including about why your premiums have changed, call us on 13 64 63. It's important to remember that as premiums are deducted from your account to pay for your insurance, they can reduce the amount you have invested and ultimately your final benefit when you retire.

To change or cancel your insurance, call us on 13 64 63, log in to your online account (for some changes excluding IP) or visit mine.com.au to find a form. We may automatically cancel your insurance cover in certain circumstances, such as when there's insufficient money in your account to pay your premiums or if you haven't made a contribution for more than 16 months. You can find more information about when cover is automatically cancelled, as well as information about exclusions and benefit limits, in the PDS and Insurance Guide at mine.com.au

If you think you're eligible to make a claim, you should contact us as soon as you can. A member of our Insurance Claims team will help you understand what you need to do to make a claim.
