1. CASH DISTRIBUTION IN EXCESS OF ATTRIBUTABLE INCOME

To the extent that the total cash distribution for the year exceeds the total attributable income, this will result in a reduction in the cost base of your units (as disclosed at 'AMIT cost base net amount - net decrease').

Assuming you hold your units on capital account, if the cost base has been reduced to nil, any further cost base decreases disclosed in the AMMA statement would give rise to a capital gain. This means that such amounts (after your cost base has been reduced to nil) will have to be disclosed as capital gains for the purposes of working out your overall capital gains included in your Australian income tax return (if required). This would be the case even though you might not have disposed of your investment.

2. NON-RESIDENT WITHHOLDING TAX

Non-resident unit holders will have interest withholding tax withheld at the rate of 10% from the Australian sourced interest component of their 2023 attributable income. In addition, withholding tax is applied at a rate of 15% (for Exchange of Information ("EOI") countries) or 30% (for countries that are not EOI countries) in respect of Fund Payments paid or attributed during the year to non-resident unit holders.

This document also constitutes an attribution summary to the extent that withholding tax was withheld from 2023 attributions.

Attribution Summary for the year ended 30 June 2023

Description	Payment amounts in AUD
Name of recipient of the withholding attributions	Addressee as shown overleaf
Recipient's TFN or ABN	Provided
Total interest attribution	3,853.02
Total withheld from interest attribution	-
Total Other net Foreign Source Income	715.00
Total withheld from Other net Foreign Source Income	-
Total Non-resident tax withheld	-

3. AMIT CGT GROSS UP AMOUNT

This amount comprises CGT concession amounts. The AMIT gross up amount is generally not disclosed in your Australian income tax return and there is no requirement to reduce the cost base of your units by this amount.

4. ATTRIBUTABLE INCOME IN EXCESS OF CASH

To the extent that the total cash distribution (plus tax offsets attributed) for the year is less than the total attributable income, this will result in an increase in the cost base of your units (as disclosed at 'AMIT cost base net amount - net increase'), which should serve to reduce your capital gain on ultimate disposal of units, if held on capital account.
