Indirect costs of your investment

Please note the "Indirect costs of your investment" amounts shown on your statement are estimates only. This component represents a notional proportion of the amount of indirect costs that are attributable to your account and not deducted directly from it and is shown to give you an indication of your share of these costs. The calculation gives you a figure which is based on your average balance in each investment option over the year. Generally, the formula assumes that the costs are incurred at regular intervals throughout the year and are of a similar size when they occur. The formula may over or underestimate indirect costs, depending on your personal circumstances, for example, if you have switched investments during the reporting period. Accordingly, amounts shown may not give an accurate estimate of the effect of indirect costs on your account.

Tax benefits

To the extent that a Fund is entitled to the benefit of a tax deduction or similar, this will be reflected in the unit price of the relevant Fund.

More details about these fees and costs are contained in the PDS. For further information, please have a look at the current version of the PDS, which you can obtain from our website (www.zurich.com.au), by calling our Customer Care on 131 551 or by contacting your financial adviser.

Automatic Exchange Of Information (AEOI)

Australia is one of many countries that has passed laws and entered into international agreements for the automatic exchange of account information to assist in making sure everyone pays the right amount of tax. As a result, Zurich Investment Management is required to identify foreign tax residents and report their details and relevant financial account information to the Australian Taxation Office (ATO). The ATO will then exchange this information with other countries who have passed similar laws. There are two AEOI laws that may affect you, Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act and Common Reporting Standards.

1. Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA)

FATCA is the United States (US) Government's legislative framework to improve compliance with US tax laws. FATCA imposes certain requirements including the provision of information to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) on foreign (non-US) financial institutions, including Australian institutions. Zurich is required to review customer accounts to determine whether they are reportable accounts (accounts held by US citizens or US tax residents) and report this information periodically to the ATO. The information will only relate to investors who are identified as US residents or those whose residency cannot be identified due to insufficient information being provided ('non-compliant account holders').

2. Common Reporting Standards (CRS)

The CRS is a global standard for the collection and exchange of account information and applies in Australia from 1 July 2017. You will be required to certify your residence for tax purposes and if you are a foreign tax resident, to supply your tax identification number or equivalent if you have one. Where the investor is an entity, we may also require this information from certain individuals associated with the entity, such as owners or controllers. Once you have an account, we may also contact you from time to time to confirm your tax residency and may request additional documentation in support. Where you are a foreign tax resident, or we have information in our records that indicate you may be a foreign tax resident but you have failed to respond to any request for clarification, we are obliged to report certain account information annually to the ATO, who will then exchange this information with the tax authority in the appropriate country.

Change in residency

Zurich Investments funds are designed for customers who are a resident in Australia. If you move to another country outside of Australia, the fund may no longer be suitable for your individual needs, and you may no longer be eligible to make contributions into the fund. The local laws and regulations of the jurisdiction to which you move may affect Zurich Investments' ability to continue to service your investment in accordance with its terms and conditions.

You need to tell Zurich Investments of any planned change in residency before the change happens. We do not offer tax advice, so if you decide to live outside Australia, we recommend you obtain advice on the tax consequences of changing your country of residence in relation to your investment. We will not be held liable for any adverse tax consequences that arise in respect of you or your investment as a result of such a change in residence. A change in residency might require Zurich Investments to suspend or terminate your investment accordingly.
